Kellogg College’s Academic Vision

Aligned with the University of Oxford’s Vision outlined in its Strategic Plan 2013-18: http://www.ox.ac.uk/about/organisation/strategic-plan

The College seeks to benefit society on a national and global scale through its research and education, and to support scholarship, flexible learning and academic freedom.

The College environment seeks to be supportive to individual scholars – and characterised by a defining and enduring sense of community between students, fellows, staff and all other members of the College.

Kellogg seeks to develop capacity to generate and share knowledge in the UK and globally, contributing to lifelong learning, public policy-making, economic growth and society.

We aim to collaborate with university departments – and other institutions and organisations – to deliver outstanding research and teaching.

The College seeks funds for scholarship and other financial assistance so students are not excluded by financial or other barriers, nor hampered by financial difficulties.

Our commitment to each student’s quality of education – and Oxford experience – should enable students to apply their acquired values, skills, and intellectual discipline throughout their future lives and careers, generating a lifelong sense of connection with Oxford.

Kellogg aims to contribute effectively to the cultural, social, and economic life of the city of Oxford and the surrounding regions.

We are committed to recruit the best fellows and staff, and to provide equality of opportunity, personal development, and career progression in all areas of College employment.
