COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT & IMPACT AWARDS 2021-22

Notes for Guidance

All current Kellogg College students are eligible for consideration for a Kellogg College Community Engagement and Impact Award. These awards are made to students who have demonstrated a genuine commitment to community engagement, increasing impact, promoting knowledge exchange, or widening participation during the current academic year. Examples of community engagement and impact include, but are not restricted to, disseminating research to the public for example in schools and sites of historic or architectural interest, creating a research-related blog which has attracted proven interest in its content, developing computer applications of direct use to public users, engaging with wider media such as through an exhibition or use of social media, and mentoring Successful recipients of a Kellogg College Community Engagement and Impact Award will receive £250 in recognition of their achievements. Students may nominate themselves or be nominated by their Department, or be nominated anonymously by another Kellogg student but the nominated student must be a current student in order to be eligible. All nominations must include a short reference from the student's Supervisor or Course Director at Oxford, other references will not be accepted. If you nominate another Kellogg student, you will need to arrange a reference from their Supervisor or Course Director. Please include links to, or copies of, news articles, publications or web links that might assist the Award Panel.

All programmes of study with students at Kellogg College are invited to participate in this initiative and additional awards are reserved for students on programmes with large numbers of students at Kellogg College in recognition of the relationship between Kellogg College and departments.

To make a nomination please complete this form and email it to academic.office@kellogg.ox.ac.uk with the reasons for your nominations by noon (GMT) on Friday Week 3 of Trinity Term, 13 May 2022.

A short reference is required from either the nominee's Supervisor or Course Director and should be emailed directly to academic.office@kellogg.ox.ac.uk by noon (GMT) on Friday Week 3 of Trinity Term, 13 May 2022. If you are a nominating Supervisor you cannot also supply the short reference.

Students will be notified if successful in June 2022. Recipients of the award will be required to provide a short news item about their work, for the College website, and encouraged to participate in opportunities to present their research in College, for instance at the College's Graduate Symposium

Kellogg College is pleased to support its students and always welcomes reports of your research activities and feedback on how the award has helped. Please send such reports to communications@kellogg.ox.ac.uk
